

Stimulus Oil on linen 53" x 50"

Rose Freymuth-frazier

My paintings are allegorical portraits of the contemporary female experience and consequently, self-portraits.

The subjective experience I portray is that of a generalized "feminine" and the gender-role expectations of women. The backgrounds are intentionally void, limiting the narrative aspects to the corporeality of the women.

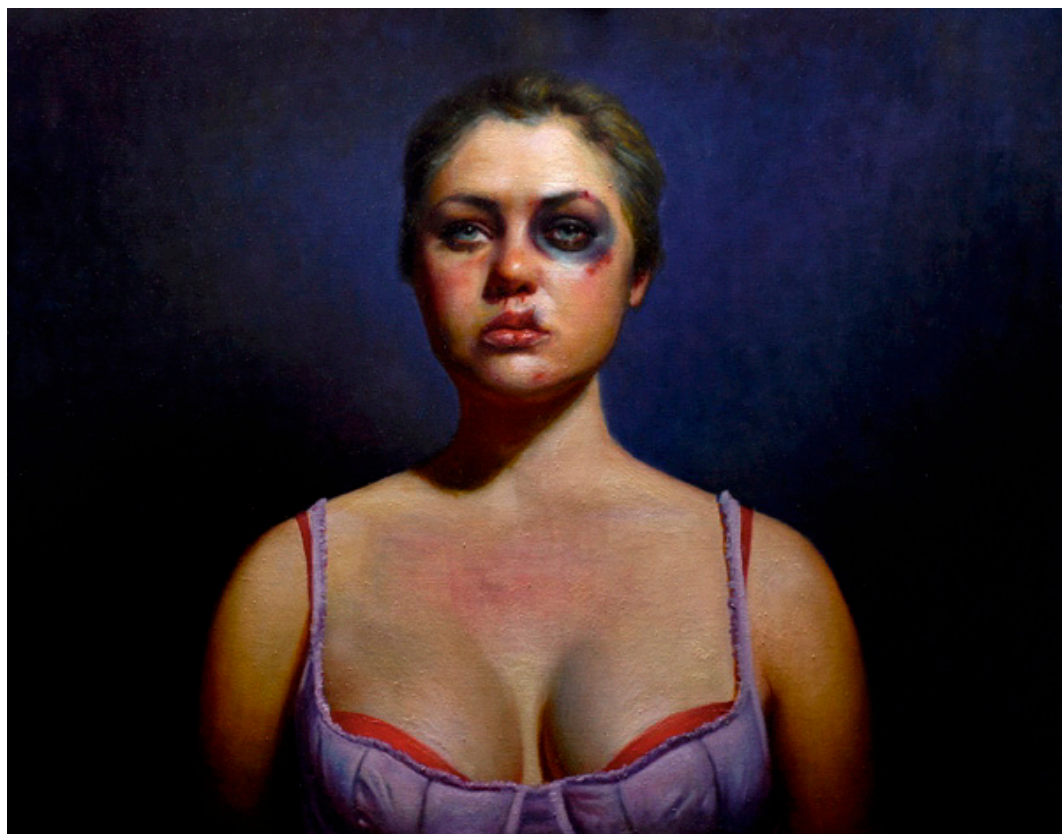

Each piece comes from my desire to address archetypal, stylized, or cliched feminine experiences. I confine the subjects in a refined veneer, and detail these experiences within the female figure--in all of its beauty, absurdity and perversity.

At right:
Three Nurses
Oil on linen
54" x 70"

Hostage Oil on linen 28" x 36"

Bruised Oil on linen 28" x 36"

Hounded Oil on linen 58" x 72"

Rose Freymuth-frazier
www.roseff.com